

“Education does not consist merely of book-learning and the time has come when India needs something more. The development of the intellect and the building up of character must proceed hand in hand and at a time of the student’s life when he is most susceptible to influences. We want men of constructive genius who will build up the edifice of India’s moral and material well-being.

Character, Industry and integrity-these are the cards to win the game of life”
