

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

“While eating bamboo sprouts, remember the man who planted them.”

- Chinese Proverb

As I reach the final frontier of my academic training in what I hope will be a continuation of an interesting and rewarding career in pavement engineering, I would like to acknowledge the support of many without whom this work would not have been possible. I thank God for everything in my life, the good and the bad. Most of them were blessings and some were lessons.

First and foremost, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to Dr. Brind Kumar, Associate Professor, Department of Civil Engineering, Indian Institute of Technology (BHU) for providing me with the opportunity to work on this project and extending his help throughout the research period, despite his own heavy work load. He provided me the freedom to explore on my own and at the same time the guidance to recover when my steps faltered. His support helped me to avert many crisis situations and finish this project.

Special thanks are due to Dr. Ankit Gupta, Associate Professor, Department of Civil Engineering, Indian Institute of Technology (BHU), for providing me his technical and moral support. He always meticulously guided me with this research and provided me the extra push I need. He also encouraged me by providing opportunities to interact with other national and international research groups. I feel honoured to work with him and his supervision groomed me a lot both on academic and personal level.

Thanks are due to Dr. Nikhil Saboo, Assistant Professor, Department of Civil Engineering, Indian Institute of Technology (BHU) who exhibited the enthusiasm, similar to my advisors in explaining the intricacies of the subject. The support, constructive criticism and technical advices provided by him during my research period are priceless. I also thank Dr. Abhishek Mudgal, Assistant Professor, Department of Civil Engineering, Indian Institute of Technology (BHU) for his valuable suggestions during my research work. I am also grateful for all the encouragement and support I received from all other faculty members of Department of Civil Engineering during my research period.
